Hello. Thank you so much for doing this with me. Well, of course.

I was telling everyone that like, you're kind of like my go-to person to interview. Okay, so just to give you some background to what I'm doing, my project is about making sort of like a collaborative platform for people. So like kind of making like a live platform where people can like multiple people, like let's say like five people at a time can all work on the same thing kind of thing.

So I kind of just want to, well, this could be like really casual, just kind of want to learn more about like how you socialize daily. So I have like, I have like six questions. So, and this is also supposed to be 30 minutes long.

So take however, you know, much time you need anyways. So the first question I have, well, I kind of feel like I kind of know about like what you're involved in like at school, but if you just want to like talk about what kind of group activities or experiences you're a part of like any jobs or like clubs or whatever. Yeah, I am in, okay.

So I just started a job at Olive Garden recently. Wait, actually? Yeah. Oh my gosh, wait, how is that? It's good.

It is, they're making me test foods right now and I have so much Olive Garden food. Wait, what? Yeah, they give you a tour of food. And so like you literally have to eat like half of their menu.

They make you eat two appetizers. I made a snack and a dessert. Wait, wait, wait, wait, is this cause like, so you like know, like what I do know, like yeah, how to recommend for people.

Oh, wait, so are you like starting as a server or is it like a host or? Yeah, as a server. Wow. And I get like 50% off on all of their food.

Wait, that's so good. It's like, it's actually, yeah. And I get free breadsticks and free pasta while I'm on ship.

Oh my God. Oh my God. And they have good benefits, but yeah.

No, it was, it was good. It was like, but it's, yeah. Cause I, as I switch into like, I have a lot of different involvements than like before, but I was like, everyone told me not to get a job, but I was like, I was so involved in undergrad.

I'm like, I need to, I'm bored and I need money. Oh yeah. I'm simultaneously working at like, like literally like I'm going to run out of money.

I don't have so much money in this world. And I gotta pay bills and I gotta be like, and my dad's like, well, you worked in undergrad. I'm like, I understand.

He's like, you have three jobs. Where's all the money? I'm like, in my savings. Okay.

I didn't, so. Wow. I'm a huge bank in Oliverton with some of those.

No, I know. I heard, I like, I, I watch a lot or like when I wake up, I like watching like get ready with me's or like, I watched like server, like horror stories or things like that. But like, I heard like Texas Roadhouse and Olive Garden.

Like, it's like kind of like hard, but you make a lot of money, so. Yeah. It is, it is a little difficult.

I mean, we were literally in there, but like I was there for just a few hours and it's like, it was only three tables that you are supposed to get at once, but because it's never ending, it's like so much like running back to that table. It's like sprinting back to, I mean, like the, like every single second of that hour was like, all those hours were filled and I was like, okay. Oh my gosh.

So do you not, so was rowing like a thing you only did undergrad? Yeah. Oh, I didn't know. I didn't know that like, I guess like all those things, like the clubs and stuff, that's for undergrad, huh? Well, I'm also in a bunch of clubs in PT.

Oh, uh-huh. I'm in a professional geriatric organization, which we like work on like, we'll do fall safety things. We'll do like different presentations.

We'll do like workout programs for geriatric, the geriatric population. Wow. We have things like that, yeah.

Oh, cool. I'm in PTLG, which is like a community service type of club. And then I'm a student ambassador, which is like helping with new students get like admission.

Wow. And I'm in research for, for also geriatric, but this one more about like, joint degeneration. And then I'm in journal clubs, two of them, but like the one that I like, I most frequently go to is like for pelvic health physical therapy.

Wait, that sounds like a lot. I got things to pick from, don't worry. No, yeah, yeah, yeah, no, no, no, no.

Wow. Let's see. My, well, okay.

My next question is kind of like silly, but I guess like, well, cause like I already know you. How would you like describe yourself or what do you think? How would your friends describe you? Oh, oh my God. I don't spend enough time self-reflecting, but it's cool.

Sorry, it's like kind of deep. No, I spend plenty of time self-reflecting, but I feel like it's not like, you're gonna be like, he's depressed. I feel like the most consistent comments I've gotten is that I am empathetic and work hard.

Oh, for sure. Yeah. I don't know that I'm, I'm also very chaotic.

I feel like that would be something that would be agreed upon with both me and my friends. Yeah. There's a little bit of a scatterbrain.

Like I can get things done, but it is a little scatterbrain. But yeah, I guess it's probably, it's probably more growing empathetic from my friend's point of view and probably from my point of view, it's more like chaos and everything. I see both sides.

Yeah, I think that's great. Like, I think that's one that even my friends wouldn't be able to be like, no, don't feel that way. Don't feel that way.

You're so nice. Once he was energetic too. Oh, for sure.

He was energetic with everyone, and the way I've heard that, so. Oh my gosh, I miss you. Like, this is like making me miss you.

Like, I miss like the energy. Oh my gosh. I know.

Aw. Yeah, well, okay. Yeah, all of that seems pretty fitting.

Like I, yeah, I would probably say the same thing. I actually think she's really mean. I'm just taking some notes, you know? So how would you describe your typical day? Like, I guess you can just talk about like routine or like, what's your schedule kind of like? Okay.

It depends on the day. I think because I'm in grad school and there's like varying schedules, I don't have a, it's not all the time super consistent, but certain days I'm like in class eight to 12 and certain days I'm in class like eight to five. Oh, wow.

And honestly, so whether or not that's true, like I wake up kind of close to like 5 a.m. and I'll either work out or I'll do extra work if I don't feel like working out and then I'll work out later in the day if that's true. But then I'll go to the classes. Usually around the noon time, I have some type of club or a dirt club or something along those lines.

Then after that, I'll have like work or I'll have another club or I'll have group projects or something along those lines. And I typically try to take a break and do either a workout or like call some, call, I don't know, family or something or like check up on friends. And then a lot of the time in the afternoon is spent studying.

There's not, there's very little like break from studying and I do tend to study like at least three to four hours a day. Oh, wow. Really? Yeah, it's necessary.

It's a necessity for you right now. But it's, I mean, but like it can be for an hour. Like that can be like one hour here or one hour there or one hour there.

Okay, I was gonna say like, yeah, do you, are you the type of person that kind of just like does it all or do you like split it? Do you know what I mean? Yeah. Like sometimes I'm like, I like have to sit down and like just do it all. Yeah, that really depends on what, what's the, like how close the test is.

Yeah, that's true. Yeah. It was just tomorrow.

We're studying like 16 hours that day. Yeah. We're doing a long day.

But I want to ideally pace it out, but I do tend to not schedule ahead in which case. I'm kind of, I mean, cause I have at least a test a week, if not more, right? So then having that, it just, it becomes hard for me to like pace it out because I do tend to like get really fixated and I have to get like a hundred percent on this test and a hundred percent on that test. So ideally I just sit out and depending on how tired I am, I will.

But I also am a big fan of like at the end of the night, I'm probably sitting down and just really going at it for like two to three hours pretty consistently at the end of the night. Yeah, I'm like locked in. Wow.

You do that every day? Yeah. Well, I've had to do more of NPT, but like also I always had a really busy schedule in undergrad. So it's like, I pretty much did it in undergrad, but there were a lot of times where I could just kind of skate by on intelligence.

So I just kind of did. Yeah. I can't do that anymore.

It's not really, it's a lot of content and a lot of like knowing attachments and things like that. Yeah. That's pretty good.

Weekends are different if you want me on that, but I feel like this one doesn't sound like it's recorded to like anyone else. I think you're just getting things from it, so. Oh, sorry.

Yeah, I am recording this. Well, just like I'm transcribing it. So it's not like an audio recording.

Yeah, sorry. I should have said that, but it's fine. Yeah, you're fine.

But I was, we can get into your weekends, but I was also just like, when you were talking about, I mean like studying three to four hours like every day and having a test every week is like kind of insane to me because I guess like, well, I talked to Kira about this too. Like, I feel like we're in different worlds where I don't remember the last time I took a test or like had to sit down and like study for a test. So like thinking about doing that is just like so impressive to me.

But I was just wondering about like, do you study with friends or like what's kind of like your study style? Or do you do it yourself? Because I feel like I always have to have someone with me to like hold me accountable, if that makes sense. I don't know if you feel the same way. It really depends.

So I don't typically have to have someone with me to keep me accountable. I think that I've just gotten used to like taking so many exams that I, if I didn't stay on top of it, I wouldn't be able to, right? But, cause it's also hard to work on people's schedule, especially with like how many things I'm involved with. Typically by the end of the day, a little bit, I'm like, all right, I'm done with people.

Yeah. For me to take a pause, but I will say before like the major exams, I like to review concepts with people, but I like to like first solidify concepts by myself and then talk to someone else about it and they can teach me or I can teach them. But it's like, yeah, up until that point, like if they ask me a question and I don't know it, it kind of stresses me out.

So I have to like first take the time myself to understand the content. And then I'll go to like all the tutorings and things like that, where it's like, they explain it to me after that, but I have to look at it myself first. Oh, that makes sense.

Yeah. Yeah. Oh, so what do you do on your weekends then or like when you have free time? Weekends, I would still have my job, but I don't have as many clubs.

And so actually like, we usually have Fridays off here. Oh, nice. Yeah, it's really nice.

But given that I have a lot of time and most of the time it's like, it's studying. I like to have one day where I'm just like resetting and I'm like cleaning my house. Oh yeah.

I've been keeping my room clean. I've been keeping my room so clean. Hey, love that.

I can't believe this, because I know you know that this is my house. I've been keeping it clean. It's been so exciting.

I've been like vacuuming, like my house is nice once a week. Shayla, I'm so proud of you. I was telling like my other friend that I brought over, and she was like, and I was like, oh, it's like kind of messy right now.

And I was like, no one has seen it as messy as when my friends have came to sleep. And I'm like, I've never seen it. So yeah, no, once a week I like to reset and then I like meal prep during that day.

And I make sure like bed is made, bathroom's clean, that kind of stuff. That day I'm not touching as much work. Like that's the ones where it's like more of the three to four hour range of study.

And then, but then most of the weekend is honestly studying. There's some, there's a lot of socials that go on with the PT class. So sometimes I will go to those.

Oh, like social events? Yeah, it's usually planned by a student government. It is like volleyball, kickball, that kind of stuff. Oh, okay.

Yeah. Wait, that's fun. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

And then, cause I'm at Creighton and I went to undergrad here. I mean, obviously I have a lot of friends from undergrad that want to catch up. And a lot of them were like people I would have naturally seen throughout the day otherwise.

So I'm struggling through scheduling people. Oh yeah. For like tight, like I try to see like one or two, maybe three people per weekend.

I'm on my second round of seeing people. Oh wow. Yeah.

So yeah, that's, that's. Yeah. That's really good.

It's hanging out with people. And that's where I have a group study session. It's mostly.

Oh, hello. Hello. Oh, sorry.

It kind of cut off. Oops. Yeah.

Well, I was mumbling out my last point anyways. Oh, that's okay. I was just finishing it up.

So, okay. Well, so what are like, so when you do like on the weekends and besides like kind of the PT, like social events that you go to, or actually, wait, one question. How big is your like class? Like 85, 86.

Oh, wow. Okay. I was just curious.

Wow. It's one of the bigger PT classes. Uh-huh.

Wow. Um, so when you do have free time and you like are like spending time with your friends like weekly, what do you like typically do with your friends or how do you interact with them or like keep connections with them? You know, while you're like super busy, you know? Yeah. Typically I try to incorporate them into a meal time.

I feel like if it's a lunch or a dinner, like I would already pause to eat dinner and lunch anyway. So I try to do that. I will, like some people who are more, like I'm a big fan of being outdoors.

So anyone who's, who wants to be more of an outdoor type of person, I do like to like, I'll just go on walks with them or like hang out in that way. If I'm like on campus, I try to see those friends and then like sometimes they're going out to like, we'll like, we'll go out and socialize like at bars or something, but not. Yeah.

But yeah, it's typically, it's typically like, I like hosting at my house a lot of the time. I've honestly given my friends, a lot of my friends at my location and I've given them like the go ahead to drop by. I just have to know that like sometimes I'm gonna be doing my work, but for the most part, like it's fine.

Like we'll get more girls and we'll have, we'll have fun and we'll just, you know. Yeah. That's nice.

I'm pretty type B in planning. Like, unless someone asks me like, Hey, we should hang out. Like in that which case I'll, I'll tell them like, okay, let's do this.

Let's go to, I have an ice cream place right next to me. That's rated number one in the nation. Wait, what's it called? Coneflower.

Oh, I think I've heard of that. Yeah, it's right by my apartment. But I'm interested in outdoors, not a lot of my friends are fans of outdoors.

So usually I end up hosting kinda and then, or yeah, or like if someone, usually like 90% of the time, if I am available, so and someone texts me like, hey, let's go to a coffee shop or like, hey, let's go to, there's an art museum right next to us that's free. You know, I'm like, let's go to the Charles line. I'm there.

I like, I like the spontaneous things. Yeah. Yeah, for sure.

I feel like that's kind of funny because I was just thinking about our last hangout and how it was like so structured, like you made an invitation and everything. I'm like. Yeah, well, see, that's the thing.

If I know that I'm gonna hang out with someone, then I'll be really structured about it. I'm like, yeah, yeah, yeah. This goes to this.

If the person who I'm with is less structured than me and they just wanna call me up, I'm like, yes, let's do that. I'm a huge fan, but I'm not usually the one, like, I'm not the one suggesting spontaneous hangouts a lot of the time. That's where I'm like, you have my location.

If you see that I'm at home and you're just like, hey, is there anyone with you? No? Okay, I'm dropping by your house. Like, I don't care. Oh, that's so nice.

Do you guys, is that often? Like your friends will just like come over? There's one friend particularly who will a lot. Her name's Emma. Yeah, she drops by a decent amount.

Sorry, I was checking something. Oh, you're good. Anyways, yeah, Emma will do that pretty often.

And a few of my friends, but a lot of my friends do like a really pretty structured hangout because they also are pretty busy and they like to just like put it in their schedule type of thing. In which case, it happens less. There's another one of my friends like Izzy.

He's like 28. Oh, wow. I give him so much crap.

I'm like, wait, why are you thinking that way? 22 year old, what's happening out here? Wait, do you guys go to school together? No, no, no, no. I met him through work. Him and his wife come over every once in a while.

They just drop by. Oh, wow. They don't have my location.

Izzy's just someone who would drop by. Oh, okay. He just every once in a while texts me and he's like, I'm in Omaha, are you available? I'm like, yeah, but you're gonna be at my house and I'm going to be doing work, but you can watch my TV.

I'm like, what's wrong with you? Wait, that's awesome. Okay, so going, or wait, actually, let's see. So how do you keep connected with your friends and do you primarily use texting or do you use some sort of other platform or? Yeah, typically I use texting, especially with friends that have moved away or even friends here.

Every once in a while I'm like, hey, how are you? Check in or a lot of the time it's like, oh my gosh, I saw this thing and it reminded me of you and I'll text in that way. There's also like, I do send a lot of like reels to people. I used to send TikToks, I don't send TikToks as much because I only have it on my computer so that I have to email people TikToks.

Wait, what? You have it on your computer? No, because as if I'm on my computer and it's on and then I'm like doing my work and I started watching TikToks, I started to feel guilty because I'm like, oh, you're right. And so then I cut it off like five TikToks. Oh my God, wait, what? But then like literally if I find something fun, like poor Emma has gotten so many emails of like me Outlook emailing her on our school account, TikToks that I found funny.

It's mostly between Instagram and texting. Texting is more likely, but some of my friends particularly like their love language is communicating through reels and that's what we do. So, and then they'll like DM me on Instagram which I do give them crap about sometimes because I'm like, you guys are old.

There's no way that Instagram, like, why are you DMing me on Instagram? Or they're just like, are you supposed to DMs? I've had those before and I was like, all right, I check this once a month, guys. Yeah. This is still like update on family.

Yeah, literally. But they also say that I suck at texting, which is somewhat fair, so. Oh, really? Yeah, it depends.

Like, especially if I'm like, if I'm just like locked in, I can take like up to five days to respond. Like to like, but it's just like, if we're just talking about different life, like I read it for sure and I was excited about it, but like, I have to, I do this thing where I have to like, reply with the same amount of energy. Oh, that's me too.

Like, I don't want to respond to a text until I like, know I'm going to put like full effort into it. Yeah. I'm so glad you said that.

Like, if I'm like really tired at the end of the day, cause I've been doing a lot of things, right? I read it and I could respond, but I would respond in a way that like, I know that I don't have the right energy and so I don't know if I'm being authentic or I'm just like, it sounds fake to me if I'm putting too much energy into it. And then I'm like, what does it mean if I'm not putting enough energy? So I sometimes just wait until, until I'm like. Yeah, and then sometimes you wait too long and then like, I forget about it and then it's awful.

Yes, I've told my friends like, emphasize the message if I didn't get to it. If you, if it gets around to like two days, like it doesn't matter. That was, that was crazy.

Like I, you know what? I didn't have energy by that time. So like emphasize your own message and I'll respond to it. That's honestly, I should probably tell my friends that too because they always get mad at me.

I'm like, I'm so sorry. But yeah, I don't know what it is. Like I just, I have to respond with energy.

Like I have to like, cause I want you to know that it like, I care, but it doesn't look like I care cause I'm not responding. Yeah, exactly. Wait, okay.

That kind of goes with my, cause I was going to ask you a question about like, what kind of gets in the way of making those connections. And I think I have the same issue where it's like, sometimes you're so, you're so busy or you're so exhausted and like responding to texts just feels like such a big emotional task, especially when it's like with close friends, you know? Exactly, yeah. Cause like also hanging out with people.

I mean, we were just joking about this with me and someone cause I really have been like, I mean, it's like three people a weekend that are like formally requesting my presence and then other people get to like drop in it. And I'm just naturally talking to people with everything, you know? And those four, like when I'm like going and consistently each weekend having to schedule that out when I have major exams too, and I have to like stop by lab and I have to do this and I have to do that, you know? Yeah. It gets like, like I was, I was doing, I was talking to Samaya and I was like, this sucks.

And she's like, you would complain more if you didn't have friends. And I'm like, okay, okay, whatever. Oh, wow.

Okay, Samaya. Yeah, I'm like, okay, whatever. Like, yes, but like it's daunting.

Cause even though I love all these people, they're all really amazing. Like there is a different level of energy that you have to have with certain, like if you have long-term friends, you know, you don't have to put in as much energy all the time. Like, I feel like we've talked about it with the two of us.

Like, I feel like I don't have to put in a lot of energy to talk to you. Yeah, cause there's like a mutual understanding. Yeah.

Yeah. Yeah. And I think that there's, but that's not like, you'll have that with like one or two friends.

You won't have that like with everyone. So the, like the constantly bring up of, even though I like, I really love hanging out with this person, I still have to like a little bit not be like, I have to have some type of, like a social energy. You know? And so I think with that, like, so like that, the busy schedule and then like, honestly, just think that I overthink things a lot.

Right? So then, I would also, also that, I'm like, every time I like come back from a social thing, I'm like, what if I said something wrong? Yeah. What if I did this wrong? I feel like they hate me at all. So I think that's the other, like, I mean, it's texting, it's like the emotional like toll of just like putting yourself out there and engaging with people.

And then the, yeah, I totally get that. Yeah. Dang.

That was relatable. I was talking to my friend about this too. And she was trying to see if there was like a way to automate, like automate like a reply being like, hey, I can't talk.

Like, I don't have enough energy to text you back right now. Like I'll respond later. But it's like, but at that point it just feels like an email.

And it's like, well, that doesn't seem, you know. But yeah. Okay.

One last question. Cause I have like one minute left. For, so you were talking about earlier for, about school and like projects or like group projects.

Do you guys use any like collaborative pro, like what are your projects? I'm like, do you use any like collaborative programs when you do group stuff? Or like, how does that work? Yeah. We, most of the time we're in person when we do it, but we'll like a lot of them will like make up a presentation for this. So we would use like a PowerPoint.

Okay. We'll use like Google Docs for a lot of different things. I will say like when we're doing like research, like journal, like journal club and that kind of stuff.

We'll, we'll, we'll use teams to talk. And, but it's not, but most of the collaboration is kind of like manual, like as far as like putting it in a document, like there's not like, it's just, it's put it in the document. And a lot of the time we meet in person, so we don't typically have to like worry about the ability.
